Letter from the publisher

Ask any pet owner to name the members of their family, and they may name their spouse, their children and often, their dog, cat, parrot or whatever beloved creature with whom they share their home. Pets are typically cared for with abiding love, and their health and well being are as important as any two-legged member of the clan.

And while some members may not get along so well with others under the same roof, everyone gets along, to a greater or lesser degree, with the family dog, cat, et al. If you subscribe to the idea, as I do, that love multiplies, it doesn't divide, then pets in a home increase the love. Better to illustrate the point, when a second child is born, the love for the first child isn't cut in half. Rather the love for the offspring is doubled. In many ways, adding a pet is akin to adding a child to the family mix.

Hence it comes as no surprise that we, at Times Beacon Record News Media, received over 50 pictures of adored pets for this week's Valentine Day's offering, Love My Pet. It is our pleasure be able to feature the many dogs, cats, birds, and even a frog.

BY LEAH S. DUNAIEF

In the past, I have smiled to myself upon seeing readers in a delicatessen or luncheonette flipping the pet pages of the newspaper and staring at each picture as they are eating their lunch.

The love we have for our pets is joyfully uncomplicated. Perhaps that explains part of the adoration. Another explanation might be that pets, with the exception of parrots, don't talk. There's something to be said for that.

Enjoy this special issue and Happy St. Valentine's Day!
